

CORNELL UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

3 1924 104 015 098

The original of this book is in the Cornell University Library.

There are no known copyright restrictions in the United States on the use of the text.

a the A through

SERMON

Occasioned by the

$\mathbf{D} \quad \mathbf{E} \quad \mathbf{A} \quad \mathbf{T} \quad \mathbf{H}$

OF THE REVEREND

MR. THOMAS BRADBURY,

Who departed this Life Sept. 9. 1759. in the 82d Year of his Age:

PREACHED AT NEW-COURT

On LORD's-DAY After-noon, Sept. 16.

And Published at the Request of the Church.

By THOMAS HALL.

LONDON:

Printed for J. Buckland, in Pater-Noster-Row; T. FIELD, in Cheapside; E. Dilly, in the Poultry; and A. Mason, in Fore-street. M.DCC.LIX.

[Price Six-pence.]

ZECH. i. 5.

Your Fathers, where are they? and the Prophets, do they live for ever?

Good Understanding and deep Conviction of the Mortality of our prefent State is highly necessary, and many Ways very advantageous and useful. The Doctrine of it is frequently inculcated in the Word of GoD; and the Truth of it is daily confirmed in the Course of his Providence.

By the folemn Event which has given Occasion for the mournful Appearance of this Assembly, the Lord is calling us to a fresh and most serious Consideration of the Instructions contained in the Words of the Text, where in a very striking and awakening Mannerwe are taught these Two Things.

FIRST, That we are All mortal. This is plainly suggested by the Query in the former Part of the Verse.

SECONDLY, That no excellent Difposition or Qualifications can exempt any Man from the Stroke of Death. This is as plainly suggested by the Query in the latter Part of the Verse.

And these are the Two general Points I shall endeavour now to insist upon, as the LORD shall help me.

FIRST, I shall take Notice of the general Mortality of our present State.

When the Question in the Text was put to the Israelites, Your Fathers, where are they? the Defign of it was, to remind them that they were All mortal, or to quicken their Attention to the Subject of the general Mortality of our Nature.

The Answer to this Query was so very obvious, that the Matter required no long Time for Consideration. They could easily reply, that their Fathers had been carried away as with a Flood (a): Though they were not

not immediately carried from the Womb to the Grave, yet their Days were few (b); and fwifter than a Post, they passed away as the swift Ships (c), which sailing before a strong Gale are quickly out of sight; and the Eyes of those that had seen them, could see them here no more; for they were not (d), but were gone the Way of all the Earth (e), and entered into the Land of Darkness in the Grave, from whence they were not to return (f); for when a Man dies, it is not designed that he should live again (g).

In our Meditation upon this Subject of Mortality, to which both the Word and Providence of God now direct us, it is fit our Thoughts should be employed in a serious and humbling Reslexion upon the following Heads, viz.

- 1. Upon the original Source and Spring of our Mortality.
 - 2. Upon the Extent of it: And,
- 3. Upon the Reason of that Extent. Let us consider,
- 1. The original Source and Spring of our Mortality, which was Sin.

Such

⁽b) Job x. 19, 20. (c) Job ix. 25, 26. (d) Job vii. 8. (e) 1 Kings ii. 2. (f) Job x. 21. (g) Job xiv. 14.

Such was the Perfection of our Nature at the first Creation of Man, and during his State of Innocency, that Death bad no Dominion over him; and fince Death was threatned only in Case of Transgression, we have reason to conclude, that if a due Obedience had been performed to the Will of God, Man would have enjoyed an endless Life. And if the Promise of Life at first was not explicitly given, it was because there was no Occasion for it, as being strongly implied in the conditional Threatning.

Yet when the Righteousness of the Law is spoken of in Scripture, we are taught, that if Man had done the Things which God had enjoined him, he should have lived by them (h). For since Death was to be inflicted as the Punishment of Disobedience, it follows, that if Man had not offended, he had not died, and if he had not died, he must have lived for ever; for an endless Duration was stamped upon his very Frame and Constitution, by his Almighty and bountiful Creator.

But Death being the Wages of Sin (i), no fooner did Sin enter into the World (k), but an

⁽b) Rom. x. 5. (i) Rom. vi. 23. (k) Rom. v. 12.

an unavoidable Liableness to the Execution of the Sentence of Death immediately sollowed. So that we see, that the original Source and Spring of our Mortality was Sin.

Let us confider in the next place,

2. The Extent of our Mortality.

And this appears to be large and wide indeed; so wide and universal, that it is of equal Extent with our Nature; for no Man who has been born in the ordinary Way, but was born under a Liableness and Subjection to Death.

If we consider seriously, where our Fathers are, we shall see reason to acknowledge, that the Sentence of Death affected, not Adam only, but his whole Posterity likewise. The Query in the Text here puts us upon thinking, not merely Where is our first Father Adam? but Where are all our intermediate Fathers, such as Noah, Shem, Ham, or Japhet? Where are Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob? Where are David and Solomon, and all the Ancestors, whether of the Jewish or Gentile Race?

What was said of all the antediluvian Patriarchs, Enoch only excepted, must be said of all our Fathers who lived in any succeeding Generation, They died. And though in a single Instance or two, God has heretofore shewn his Sovereignty, in translating them, and not suffering them to see Death; and though as to those, who shall be alive at Christ's second coming, it is declared, that they shall all be changed, but shall not all sleep the Sleep of Death (1); yet as to all intervening Generations, as sure as Men are born, it is no less sure they shall die.

On the whole, it is incontestably evident from the Departure and Death of our Fathers, that when God said to Adam, Dust thou art, and unto Dust shalt thou return (m), we were all comprehended and included in that Sentence. The Apostle therefore insists upon it in general Terms, that it is appointed unto Men once to die (n); or it was once, and at one and the same Time, appointed unto Men to die, that is, unto all Men absolutely and universally considered.

And now let us consider,

3. The Reason of the universal Extent of this Appointment.

And

And this was, because all have sinned; as the Apostle declares, Rom. v. 12. Where we may observe, that the Greek Words [& O' द्धी will admit of being translated two different Ways; yet in which ever of those Ways they shall be taken, they plainly suggest the Reason, why Death passed upon all Men. If the Words be taken absolutely, then they expressly and precisely specify the Reason, why Death passed upon all Men; it is, for that, or because all have sinned: Or if the Words be taken relatively, and be rendered in whom, (as they are in the Margin,) then as they point out the Reason, why Death passed upon all Men, they shew us likewise the Foundation or Reason, why all Men are accounted Sinners; even because they sinned with, and in, that one Man, by whom Sin and Death first entered juto the World. And fince all Men were Parties jointly concerned with Adam in the Breach of the first Covenant, it was but fit, that the Sentence which was passed upon him, should be extended to all that became guilty with him.

Should it be asked, How it came to pass, that we, and all Men became guilty with Adam in his first Transgression? the Answer is, Because by the wise and righteous Appointment of G o D Adam our natural Head, and common Parent, was constituted our federal Head and Representative.

Now as what is done by a legal Reprefentative is ever deemed in Law and Justice, to be done by the Person or Persons that are represented: So in the Eye of the Law, Adam's Transgression was our's; and for this Reason, the same Sentence which the Law passed upon him, it also passed upon us, and all that were represented by him. And whoever rightly believe, that Adam was the Figure of Christ (o), in being the publick Head of his natural Family, as Christ is the publick Head of his spiritual Family the Church. they cannot but acknowledge, that the Judgment of the Law herein was true and righteous; however Men of perverse Minds may argue against it, pretending it would be an unrighteous Proceeding, if by one Man's Disobedience others should be made Sinners, though this is clearly afferted by the inspired Apostle in his Epistle to the Romans (p).

But instead of objecting, disputing, or cavilling against this Truth, so plainly declared in the Word of Go D, let us plead, that we may be bumbled under our Experience, that the

⁽⁰⁾ Rom. v. 14.

⁽p) Rom. v. 19.

the Punishment of the grand Apostacy, contained in that Threatning of Mortality, is come upon ourselves. And this being an undeniable Evidence, that We were concerned in that Apostacy, let the Consideration hereof engage us to mourn under the Remembrance of the original Sin and Guilt, which attended us at our very Birth, or as soon as we became Partakers of the Human Nature.

Thus we see, that in our Meditations upon our Mortality we ought to remember these three Things; namely,—That the original Source of it was Sin;—That the Sentence which doomed our Nature to this Mortality, was of an universal Extent; and—That the Reason of this Extent was, because all the Human Race have sinned in Adam, their Covenant-Head and publick Representative.

Having thus considered the Mortality of our present Srate, I shall now pass on to the Second General; under which I am to shew, SECONDLY, That no excellent Difposition or Qualifications can exempt any One of the Apostate Race of Adam from the Stroke of Death.

Thus much is plainly intimated by the Query in the latter Part of the Text, And the Prophets, do they live for ever? Mode of Expression in which the Question is formed, fufficiently shews, that if a just Answer be given to it, it must be in the Negative: For in other Cases, it is common to put the Question in the Affirmative, when it is intended that the Negative should be most strongly maintained. Thus, If a Man die, shall be live again (q)? No affuredly, be shall not: So here, Do the Prophets live for ever? It is most certain, They do not. Had the Question been clothed with a negative Form, after this manner, Do not the Prophets die? the Answer must have been in the Affirmative, Yes, They certainly die.

And fince this is so manifestly the Case as to the Prophets themselves, we may hence justly conclude, That no Excellency or Dignity of any other Men can exempt them from dying.

Here let me give you first, a brief Illustration of this Point; and then shew you, what Use or Improvement should be made of these Truths, in a Way of Application.

As

As to the Illustration of the Point, I shall instance in a few Particulars: And you will easily perceive, That no Man shall be exempted from dying,

1. Upon Account of the Dignity of any bonourable Office which he bears.

The true Prophets of the Lord were highly dignified: And by the Prophets here referred to, we are without Doubt to understand, those extraordinary Ministers, whom God raised up and ordained under the Old Testament Dispensation, to reveal his Counsels, to carry his Messages, and deliver his Commands to his Church and People. Such were Moses and Aaron: Such were Samuel, David, Isaiah, Jeremiah, and others. And as these were in their Office Types of Christ, the great Prophet of the Church, there was a Dignity attending them, which beyond all Comparison was superior to the highest Dignity that could be conferred by the greatest of earthly Princes; yea, superior to the highest Dignity sustained by those Monarchs themfelves.—But though these to whom the Word of Gon came, and who were employed to speak to the People in the Name of the Lord, were termed Gods (r), in the like Sense as Moses was (s), yet notwithstanding they were called Gods, they died like Men (t).

No meer Man had a bigher Trust than Moses, no One a bigher Honour than Aaron the Saint of the Lord (u); yet it was the Divine Pleasure and Command concerning Both, that they should die and be gathered to their People (x), as were the rest of the Israelites, or those who had the lowest Station in the House of God. Neither shall any Man be exempted from dying upon Account of the Dignity of the Office which he bears, whether in the Civil Community, or in the Church of God. —— Nor shall any Man be exempted from Death,

2. Upon Account of the Nearness of any Spiritual or New-Covenant Relation in which he stands to Gop.

Besides the Ecclesiastical Relation to God, which was founded upon the Divine Institution of any Office, the holy Prophets and all the Saints had a near Relation to God, founded upon the Covenant of Grace. According to the new and everlasting Covenant, which God has made with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah, He becomes their GOD.

⁽s) Exod. vii. 1.

⁽t) Pfal. lxxxii. 6, 7.

⁽u) Pfal. cvi, 16.

⁽x) Deut. xxxii. 50.

GOD, and they are made his People (y): And whoever are brought within the Bonds of this Covenant, they are admitted into a peculiar Relation to God, which carries in it all the Nearness that can be conceived to subfift between God and Man: For fuch are not only his Servants, and his Friends, but bis Children, and this both by Regeneration and Adoption: Yea, God is not only their Master, and their Father, but he is their Husband. And this New-Covenant Relation between God and his People can never be dissolved; for they who are once the Lord's, are ever his, and he hates putting away (z). They therefore who are once taken into the Family and House of God, shall never be cast out, but shall abide therein for ever (a): Yet the Night is coming on, when the Children of God themselves must be unclothed, and after they have spent the Day in serving their own Generation by the Will of God, they must fall asleep, as David did (b).

For when our LORD declared, That if a Man believe on him, and keep his Saying, he shall never see Death (c), the Privilege there promised by him was not an Exemption from dying the natural Death, but a Blessing of much much egreater Importance, and infinitely, more valuable than that would have been, even an absolute Security from being burt of the Second Death.

⁽y) Jer. xxxi. 31, 33. (z) Mal. ii. 16. (a) John viii. 35. (b) Acts xiii. 36. (c) John viii. 51.

The Promise therefore, that his Disciples should not see Death, meant the same, as when it is faid, that whosoever believeth in bim, shall never perish (d): And though every Believer, on Account of the Change of his Spiritual State, may justly be faid to be already passed from Death unto Life (e); yet it is no where promised them, notwithstand. ing the Nearnel's of their Spiritual Relation to God, that the Life which they now live in the Flesh shall never end; for as the Prophets of old did not, so neither is there any Warrant to expect, that any of the dear Children of God in the present Time shall live here for ever. - Nor can a Man be exempted from dying,

3. Upon Account of any present high Attainments in Grace or Holiness.

We have reason to believe, that among the Prophets here spoken of, those Holy Men of God were included, who were not only savoured with the Spirit of Wisdom and Revelation (f) that the Eyes of their Understandings ings being enlightened, they might know the great Things of God's Law, and the peculiar Doctrines of Divine Revelation; but whose Privilege also it was, to have their Hearts and Consciences powerfully impressed by the special and efficacious Operations, and by the renewing and sanctifying Influences of the Holy Ghost, whereby they were born again, and created anew unto good Works (g): And thus their Hearts were right with God (b), and they became truly desirous to walk in bis Ways, and were made conscientiously careful to be sted aft in bis Covenant.

⁽d) John iii. 16. (e) John v. 24. (f) Eph. i. 17, 18.

They believed in God, and trusted in his Salvation (i); they were of an excellent Spirit (k), and walked with God (l): And whatever Afflictions, Trials, or Opposition, they met with in the Way, yet they did not forget his Statutes, but esteemed all his Precepts concerning all Things to be right, and hated every false Way (m); and were enabled every one through Grace to keep himself from his own Iniquity (n). Their Meditation of God was sweet (o), and in the Multitude of their Thoughts within them, his Comforts did delight their Souls (p); and his Word did they hide in their Hearts, that they might not sin against him bim (q). Thus were they made wife unto Salvation: They understood the Fear of the LORD, and found the Knowledge of GoD (r); and their prevailing Aim was to keep the Way of Righteousness, Judgment, and Equity, yea, every good Path (s).

⁽g) Eph. ii. 10. (b) Pfal. lxxviii. 37. (i) Pfal. lxxviii. 22. (k) Prov. xvii. 27. (l) Gen. vi. 9. (m) Pfal. cxix. 83, 128.

⁽n) Pfal. xviii. 23. (o) Pfal. civ. 34. (p) Pfal. xciv. 19.

But however their bigh Attainments in Grace and Holiness might be encouraged, by God's revealing to them the Abundance of Peace and Truth, and causing them to hear the Voice of Joy and Gladness (t), yet the highest Degrees of their real Sanctity and true Holiness could not prevent their being unclothed; but for how long a Day soever their Conversation had been in Heaven (u), yet the Night came, when they were obliged to have their Lodging in the Grave.

And as it was in Solomon's Days, so it is now, and so it will be to the last Age of the World, As dieth the Fool, that is, the wicked Man, the Sinner, so too as certainly must the Wise die (x), how religious and pious, how gracious and holy soever they have been.—

Nay further,

4. No Man can be exempted from dying, how faithfully Zealous, or remarkably Active foever.

⁽q) Pfal. cxix. 11. (r) Prov. ii. 5. (s) Prov. ii. 8, 9. (t) Jer. xxxiii, 6, 11. (u) Phil. iii. 20. (x) Eccl. ii. 16.

foever, he has been in the Cause of Christ, and for the Glory of his Name.

It must be allowed, that the holy Prophets of old had a Zeal for God, and it was a Zeal according to Knowledge (y). They were careful to frand in God's Counfel (2), and to preach the Preaching which he bade them (a). The Words which the LORD spake unto them, they heard with their Ears, and received them in their Heart: They were valiant for the Truth (b), and had so strict a Regard unto the Divine Authority, and fo high a Reverence for God, that they did not dare to mix their own Notions with his Revelation, nor Men's Inventions with his Institutions. What God commanded, that they did; what He probibited, from that they abstained; and what they received from the Lord, that they delivered to the People, without adding to, or diminishing from it.

They did not teach for Doctrines the Commandments of Men (c); but they spake the Truth in Love (d): And in their Doctrine they shewed Uncorruptness, Gravity, and Sincerity, using sound Speech that could not be condemned (e). Nor did they hold the Truth in Unrighteousness (f); but in their Practice shewed themselves Patterns of good Works (g), being raised above the Influence of all Court-Flattery, and watching against the Snares that were laid for them, by any Offers of high Preferment, or worldly Emoluments. Their Care was to preach as pleasing God, whether Men were pleased or not (b).

(y) Rom. x. 2. (z) Jer. xxiii. 22. (a) Jon. iii. 2.

⁽b) Jer. ix. 3. (c) Mat. xv. 9. (d) Eph. iv. 15.

⁽e) Tit. ii. 7, 8.

They were not terrified by the Threatnings of their Adversaries (i), but shewed that they were not afraid of Bonds or Imprisonment; and when they were stoned, and had Trials of cruel Mockings and Scourgings (k), they were not moved by any of these Things (1), but still persevered in the Course of their Ministry, zealously bearing a faithful Testimony for God. For even in their Days, (as in Ours,) there were Men of a Pharifaick Temper, who under a Pretence of searching after Truth, set themselves against the great Things that could only be known by a divine and supernatural Revelation: And these Persons greatly withstood the Words of the holy Men of God (m); and though they could not always raife a Persecution, and shed the Blood of the boly Prophets at pleasure, as they did that of Zacharias (n), yet they always ways treated them with a fovereign Contempt; and where they had not Front enough to tax them as weak Bablers (o, they were yet so wicked as to condemn them as Furies and Mad-men; and the most faithful Preaching was run down as Enthusiasm, and exclaimed against as being too mystical, because it was truly divine and spiritual.

⁽f) Rom. i. 13. (g) Tit. ii. 7. (b) 1 Theff. ii. 4. (ij Phil. i. 28. (k) Heb. xi. 36, 37. (l) Acts xx. 24. (m) 2 Tim. iv. 15. (n) Mat. xxiii. 35.

Thus Ezekiel lamented his Case, when he said, Ab, LORD GOD! they say of me, Doth he not speak Parables (p)? that is, in the modern Language of our Day, Doth he not talk mystically and enthusiastically? But the LORD made the Face of his Servants strong against the Face of their Enemies (q), and they went on in their Work with Pleasure and Joy, being zealously affected always in a good Thing (r), till their Course was sinished; yet at last there was Occasion to say, not only of One or Two, or of a few of them, but it is recorded of them all, that they died.

Notwithstanding their Zeal in spreading the good Report which they had obtained or received, yet their most fervent Zeal could not prevail, that they should be always continued in Life, and not die.——Once more, I would observe,

5. That

⁽⁰⁾ Acts xvii. 18. (p) Ezek. xx. 49. (q) Ezek. iii. 8.

⁽r) Gal. iv. 18.

5. That a Man cannot be exempted from Death, upon Account of the greatest Success and Usefulness in the Cause of God.

There is a vast Variety as to the Gists and Talents, as to the Capacities and Opportunities, with which the Lord intrusts Men, that they may be useful in their Day. To some he gives great Skill in the Affairs of Government, and a clear Understanding of the Times (s): These are fitted to advise and direct what a People ought to do, for their own Sasety, Welfare, and Prosperity, whether in a Time of Peace or War. To some the Lord gives a large Portion of earthly Treasure, that they may have it in their Power to relieve the Necessitous, and to do much Good by communicating to the Poor.

Others are still more highly favoured with singular Abilities, and gracious Qualifications for the Prophetical Office, that they more especially may be made of Service to the Souls of Men. And some of these have been remarkably assisted, strengthened, and succeeded, so that they have been, in the Hand of the Spirit, the happy Instruments of instructing and enlightening many, and of turning many unto Righteousness (t). And with Respect to

⁽s) 1 Chron. xii. 32.

to these, Believers have been apt to think, it was needful that such should abide in the Flesh (u) for publick Service to spiritual Purposes.

But though they were burning and shining Lights (x), Men full of the Holy Ghost and of heavenly Wisdom (y); though they were mighty in the Scriptures (z), and apt to teach (a); though they were enabled so to speak, that many believed; yet their Life quickly came to a Period, and they died.

The Remarks I have thus made, I humbly conceive, are a sufficient Illustration of the Point I have been insisting on, (viz.) That no Excellencies, Privileges, or Advantages, which attend any of our Mortal Race, can exempt them from the Stroke of Death.—

Neither the Dignity of any Office they bear, —neither the Nearness of their Spiritual Relation to God,—nor the Height of their Attainments in Grace and Holiness;—neither their Zeal for the Honour of the Redeemer,—nor their Usefulness in Life, can prevent their Departure.

And with Regard to that venerable Father, the late worthy Pastor of this Church, whose Funeral ⁽u) Phil. i. 24. (x) John v. 35. (y) Acts vi. 5.

⁽z) Acts xviii. 24. (a) 2 Tim. ii. 24.

Funeral was Yesterday so publickly solemnized, and whose Death is this Day very forely lamented by us, I may leave it to you, my forrowful Friends, who best knew him, and were most intimately acquainted with his exemplary Piety, his Fervour and Zeal in the Cause of Religion and Truth, his extraordinary Readiness in the Scriptures which appeared in all his Discourses, and his Usefulness in the Ministry of the Gospel; to You, I fay, I may leave it to judge, whether in his Departure the LORD has not given us a fresh Proof, that whatever be the excellent Endowments, the happy and gracious Qualifications of his Servants the Prophets, even of the most renowned of them, yet they do not live for ever.

But instead of enlarging here upon the Character of the Deceased, I shall endeavour now to offer you a few Inferences by Way of APPLICATION, which may be for the Quickning and Edification of the Living, rather than seek to give any high Encomium upon the Dead.

Let me then defire you to attend to the following just, serious, and necessary Reflections: And may the Spirit of the Lord make them truly useful to us all!

[1.] Does

[1.] Does the Removal of our Fathers plainly shew us our own Mortality, and make it evident that We likewise must quickly depart, let then the Consideration of this engage us to be diligent in our Preparation for the awful approaching Change.

CHRIST is now saying to Us, both by his Word and Providence, Be ye also ready (b). And here let us remember, that there can be no Readiness for Death, unless we are born again, renewed in the Spirit of our Mind, and made New Creatures; unless we are espoused to Christ, joined to the Lord, and by his Spirit quickened and raised into a vital Union with Him, and thus wrought into a Conformity and Likeness to Him, and led into a Communion and Fellowship with Him.

Unless His Righteousness be put upon Us, imputed to Us, and received by Us, in the Actings and Exercise of a Faith unseigned, as a Gift of the most free, sovereign, rich and heavenly Grace; unless that Righteousness be depended upon, as the only Ground of our Confidence and Hope in God for Acceptance with Him; there can be no due Preparedness for Death. They that have not believed in the Son of God, nor trusted in his Salvation (c), what can they expect, but that when they die they shall find God to be their Enemy, and to be wroth with them for their provoking Disobedience and Rebellion against Him: And such as fall under the wrathful Displeasure of God, must be destroyed. Let these Considerations quicken us to prepare for Death. And,

⁽b) Mat. xxiv. 44.

[2.] Since we cannot live for ever, and know not how foon we may die, let us watch against any further Delay in Matters of the utmost Importance.

Except we repent, we must All perish (d): And it will be dreadful indeed for those who have had the long Space for Repentance given them, which has been given even to the youngest in this Assembly that is grown up to a Capacity for Self-Reslection; it will be dreadful, I say, for such to be cut off and snatched away by Death, before they have repented.

While we are spared, let us study the Nature, Duty, and Necessity of a truly Evangelical Repentance: And under a Conviction, that whatever Warnings, Instructions, or Calls

⁽c) Pfal. lxxviii. 22.

Calls to Repentance are given us by the Word and Providence of God, yet we shall never repent nor return, if the Lord does not turn us, and if He who is exalted to be a Prince and a Saviour, does not give us the Grace of Repentance (e); under a Conviction, that without this we shall never repent, let us be much in Prayer for the Spirit of Christ, that he may take away the Heart of Stone, and give us an Heart of Flesh (f), that he will be graciously pleased to put his Law in our inward Parts, and write it in our Hearts (g); for till this Mercy is granted us, we cannot turn to the LORD, nor be delivered from an accusing, condemning, and self-tormenting Conscience. But,

[3.] Do not the Prophets live for ever, then their Ministry should be carefully improved by a People, while it is mercifully continued among them.

What our LORD faid to the Jews concerning his own Ministry, is in a proper Sense applicable to the Case of any People, who are favoured with the Preaching of his faithful Ministers; that yet a little while the Light is with them (b). It becomes us all therefore, while we have the Light, to believe in the Light (i); that is, while we have the Light of the Word, we are to believe in that Saviour who is the Light of the World (k) whom the Word reveals,

(e) Acts v. 31. (f) Ezek. xxxvi. 26. (g) Jer. xxxi. 33.

As to your late Pastor, you will see his Face in the Flesh, and bear his Voice no more. It is your Mercy indeed, to have still a Prophet among you: Yet remember, that no present Advantages as to his Years, his bodily Strength or Vigour, can be any Security for his being long continued, how greatly foever this Bleffing is to be defired. But whilft he is spared, let every One of this Church and Congregation pray and watch, that there may not be a fad Occasion for the like Complaint against any, that was made against the Hearers of the Prophet Ezekiel, They seemed zealous and forward to attend bis Ministry, but when they heard his Words, they would not do them (1).

Plead, that the Ministry which the LORD has so seasonably sent you, may not be to you meerly as the lovely Song of one that has a pleasant Voice; but watch and pray, that through the special Blessing of the LORD it may ,

⁽b) John xii. 35. (i) John xii. 36. (k) John viii. 12.

may be the Power of God unto the Salvation of your Souls (m), and may thus be not the Savour of Death unto Death, but the Savour of Life unto Life (n), unto the Glory of his Name. Again, [4.] Is it plain, that the Prophets do not live for ever, how thankful then should we be for a Succession of Prophets and faithful Ministers?

The LORD, in his infinite Wisdom and fovereign Pleasure, has ordained that Men of mortal Infirmity should be employed in the Service of the Sanctuary, and they are not suffered to continue by Reason of Death (o). How kind and tender then is it in CHRIST. the Head of the Church, that He takes Care for a Succession? That though Ministers die, yet the Office and Work of the Miniftry shall not cease; and though all Flesh be as Grass, and the most bonourable and renowned among Men be as the Flower of the Grass; though the Grass withereth, and the Flower thereof falleth away, yet the Word of the Lord, and the Ministry thereof, still endureth, and shall endure to the End (p). He that that removed Elijab, presently raised up an Elisha to be bis Successor.

⁽m) Rom. i. 16. (n) 2 Cor. ii. 16. (o) Heb. vii. 23. (p) 1 Pet. i. 24, 25.

May we not justly remark, that as in God's Promise to give the Land of Canaan to Abraham's Seed, there was included a Promise that he would give a Seed to Abraham (q); in like Manner, when Christ promised, that he would be with his Ministers alway, did not this imply, that there should be always a Succession of Ministers, even to the End of the World (r)? And when it is said, the Word of the Lord endureth for ever, what follows is a plain Intimation, that the Gospel shall be preached for ever; for it is said, This is the Word, which by the Gospel is preached unto you (s).

I now come to the last Inference I shall make from the Subject, viz.

[5.] Since all ministerial Prophets must die, and have a Period put to their Usefulness among us, with what thankful Admiration should we behold and aknowledge the transcendent and infinite Excellency of the LORD JESUS CHRIST, the great Prophet and universal Bishop of the Church?

True,

True, He died once; as the faithful Difcharge of his mediatorial Undertaking made it necessary, that he should die once for all (t), that is, Once and no more: But though He died, He quickly revived, and is now alive and liveth for evermore (u); and with Respect to all his Offices, He is the same Yesterday, To-day, and for ever (x), so that his Prophetical Office is as unchangeable as his Priesthood (y). And so long as any of his Disciples and Followers can need Instruction, He lives to communicate and impart it; and never could any teach like Him (z). He causes his Sheep to hear his Voice, and teaches them fo powerfully and effectually, that they become heartily willing and refolved to follow Him (a). He lives to do that for his People, which can never be done by any of his Prophets or Ministers; for He gives them an Understanding and an Heart to know the LORD (b), even to know Himself, that He is the true God, and eternal Life (c).

But to draw to a Conclusion, Let the firm Belief and ferious Confideration that our Redeemer ⁽t) Heb. x. 10. (u) Rev. i. 18. (x) Heb. xiii. 8.

⁽y) Heb. vii. 24. (z) John vii. 46. (a) John x. 27.

⁽b) Jer. xxiv. 7. (c) 1 John v. 20.

Redeemer ever lives, ferve to comfort the Hearts of this Church and Congregation under their present mourning Circumstances.

Pore not too much upon the dark Side of the Cloud; for besides the grand Particulars I have already mentioned, there are fome Things, though of less Weight, that have yet a Tendency to alleviate your Grief, and to prevent your forrowing over much. Remember what Reason you have, to sing of Mercy as well as Judgment (d). It is Matter of Thanksgiving and Praise, (and I am perfuaded you think it fo,) that God has supplied you with an agreeable Successor, even before the Demise of his aged Predecessor. ---You well knew, that the Deceased could not live for ever: Nor was it to be expected, according to the common Course of Nature, that if his Days ,had been much farther prolonged, bis Capacity for publick Service would have been of equal Duration. And as you had Reason to expect, so you have had Time to prepare for, this Event; for God had satisfyed him with long Life (e).-He had fought a good Fight, he kept the Faith (f), and has now finished his. Course with Joy (g); and during the Time of his lingering lingering Illness, he gave happy Evidence that he was waiting for his last Change (h) with a fixed Confidence, that the End of his Faith would be the Salvation of his Soul (i). This appeared by the frequent bumble and thankful Declarations he made, that his God was with him, and that he was kept nigh unto bis GoD; and therefore had he an affured Hope, that at his Dissolution, his Garments being made white in the Blood of the Lamb (k), he should be received into the heavenly Mansions, to dwell in the immediate Presence of God where there is Fulness of Joy, and at whose Right-Hand (as he often solemnly declared, he firmly believed,) there are Pleasures for evermore (1).

⁽d) Pfal. ci.1. (e) Pfal. xci. 16. (f) 2 Tim. iv. 7.

⁽g) Acts xx. 24.

Hence arose his fervent and daily Breathing, Come Lord Jesus, come——, and when he had Strength, he would add, come quickly (m); but of late through bodily Weakness his Speech so faltered, that he was not able to finish the Sentence so as to be heard.

And must it not give us a Pleasure to hear, that his Exit was so triumphant and joyous? Have we not all Reason to be thankful, that he was spared so long? as in E our our Times there are but few, very few Instances to be named, of a Minister's being continued in the Labours of the Gospel, and with such little Interruption by Sickness, for so many Years, as He was, even from his Eighteenth to the Eighty-second Year of his Age. And from the Beginning to the last Period of his Ministry, his Life was justly esteemed as a great Blessing upon various Accounts, to many Churches and Saints, both in City and Country.

⁽b) Job. xiv. 14. (i) 1 Pet. i. 9. (k) Rev. vii. 14. (l) Pfal. xvi. 14. (m) Rev. xxii. 20.

And we ought to reflect upon it with Thankfulness, that as his Furniture and Abilities for the ministerial Work were great, and his Popularity in Preaching uncommon; so his Ministry, not only in his own Congregation, but in several of the most publick Lectures in this City, was in various Instances crowned with some remarkable Success.

Nor was his Usefulness confined to the Pulpit, but he frequently employed the Press to the best Purposes; and his good Understanding in the Misteries of the Gospel, his Faithfulness and Zeal in contending for the Faith once delivered to the Saints (n), his Capacity, Steadiness, and Valour in defending the Cause of Religion and Liberty, were mani-manifestly discovered in the useful Pieces which he published against the Enemies of God and their Country, who have endeavoured to revive and propagate the destructive Notions of the Arians and Pelagians, and the inslaving Dostrines of Passive Obedience and Non-Resistance.

⁽n) Jude, ver. 3.

However, as we have heard no Zeal or Usefulness, whether in preaching or defending the Gospel, can perpetuate the Life of the most able or faithful Ministers: But happy for us, we have this to comfort us under the Mortality of Ministers, that the great Prophet of the Church liveth and abideth for ever: And as He will direct his Work in Truth (0), so wherever He has begun a good Work in the Hearts of any, He will perform it until the Day of Jesus Christ (p), and will take Care to perfect that which is lacking in our Faith (q).

And All that have heard Christ, and have been taught by him (r), and thus have been enabled to commit themselves to his Protection, They shall be kept by his mighty Power through Faith unto compleat and eternal Salvation (s); and then we shall constantly flantly with our whole Hearts acknowledge, that whatever have been the grieving E-vents of Time, yet our LORD ever did all Things well (t).

⁽⁰⁾ Hai. Ixi. 8. (p) Phil. i. 6, (q) 1 Theff. iii. 10. (r) Eph. iv. 21. (s) 1 Pet. i. 5.

Let our Trust therefore be in Him; for worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive the highest Ascriptions of Power and Riches, of Wisdom and Strength (u): To Him therefore be Honour, and Glory, and Blessing, World without End. Amen.

(t) Mark vii. 37. (u) Rev. v. 12.

F I N I S.

Just Published.

Sermon on the Death of the Rev. Mr. Thomas Bradbury. Preached in New-Court, Carey-Street, on Lord's Day Morning, Sept. 16. 1759. Published at the unanimous Request of the Church, with a Dedication to Them, containing a short Character of the Deceased, By Richard Winter. Price 6d.

